Midnight Vision, Aureate Purpose

Take my hand; Let me weave you

Into

dusk...

Those feet of yours, that grounded flesh —

They have no hold on the gilded kindling
Of your soul:

That weightless spirit I carry

Into

Navy blue seas

of stories.

Your pen spills gold,

Abound

with plots of lavish words,

Whose abundant yearning

holds your mind

By a single opulent thread.

That thread holds strong as your roots,
Grown from clever seeds of midnight tales.

Your wits —

Scribbled down in gluttonous twilight

To make this journey grit its teeth,

Lifting you higher ^{into the night.}
Into the night.

A transition

Untethered —

Like this creativity of mine.

I give it to you, a poet alike.

Make it glisten,

This starry twine.
